Presentation Overview:

This is a discussion that will explore information security program maturity models. This session will cover the benefits of these models and how they are leveraged by CISOs. The session will take a closer look into one information security program maturity model and describe its model approach, structure, maturity categories, voting process, and executive dashboard reporting, along with providing a few comparisons of this model with other information security program maturity models available in the market today.

Speaker:

As the Vice President of Strategic Services at Fishnet Security, Mark Carney leads a group of 22 seasoned security advisors that interface with CSOs, CROs, and CIOs at FORTUNE 500 and global institutions that assist these organizations with information assurance, managed services, identity and access management, and training professional service's needs. Mark has experience in building information assurance professional services organizations, including all aspects of sales/marketing/business development, staff management, project management, and service delivery execution. In his over 10 years at FishNet Security, he has also managed the information assurance division and spent several years as a Sr. Security Consultant.

News from ISACA

How Did ISACA Benefit You in 2012?

As 2012 is coming to a close, members are sharing how their ISACA membership has benefited them throughout the year. Here are some great examples:

- ◆ “The ISACA community has helped me understand information security in a better way,” says member Rahul Das.
- ◆ Victor Joshua Penumaka says, “ISACA helps me network with people that are highly passionate and motivated about their career. Thanks ISACA.”
- ◆ “ISACA has benefited me by offering relevant opportunities for keeping up with what peers in the profession are thinking and doing worldwide—by offering great networking opportunities for IT governance professionals and the opportunity to contribute something back to the profession,” wrote Vittal R. Raj.

Has ISACA helped you in your career? Got a great story to share? Take a moment for reflection and share your favorite benefits on:
